

ABSTRACT

A method for fabricating a mold comprises following steps: providing a base plate (100), forming recesses (200) in the base plate using a series of photo mask processes. These photo mask processes formed a plurality of holes, which cooperatively form recesses of a predetermined shape with high proximity.